Sole practitioner specializing in construction, business, political and corporate matters, focusing on litigation, business growth and development and political endeavors. As general counsel to a variety of corporations, I provide advice on all aspects of corporate and administrative affairs, including mergers and acquisitions, regulatory compliance and general business matters, while handling all their litigation needs. As General Counsel to the Trade Contractors Council of the Southern California Building Industry Association, I drafted the Master Contract currently being used by major builders and subcontractors throughout Southern California. In addition to providing representation for clients dealing with various political and governmental entities and agencies, I have handled a number of complex and high profile political litigation matters, including representing Supervisor William Campbell in the Orange County Measure "V" litigation and numerous individuals in the recent challenge to California's Open Primary Legislation.

Berger Kahn Shafton et al
